HAPPY
MOTHERS DAY

The Paschal Candle: Symbol of the Risen Lord

The Catholic Church has many beautiful symbols, some of which are not very well understood at all. Take the Paschal Candle, which stands next to our pulpit from the Easter Vigil until Pentecost Sunday. Some view it as just a gigantic candle, but it actually brims over with much rich symbolism.

First, the Paschal Candle represents the Risen Christ. As such, it is always the largest of all candles. It stands alone near the pulpit to emphasize the connection between the Risen Christ and the Word, which is proclaimed from that point. At times, the priest incenses the Paschal Candle in the same way that he incenses the altar and crucifix, which also represent Christ.

Second, the flame at candle's top recalls that Jesus is “the Light of the world.” This flame first appeared at the Easter Vigil when it was the first glimmer of light in the entirely dark church. People lit their own candles from it, an act that reminds us that whatever light we have comes from Christ himself.

Third, if you look closely at the candle you will notice five small nails embedded in the wax. These little nails – really pins with small wax heads on them – were inserted in the candle after it was blessed at the beginning of the Easter Vigil. As the nails were pushed in, the following prayer was recited: “By his holy and glorious wounds, may our Christ our Lord guard us and protect us.” These nails symbolize the five wounds of Jesus: his two hands, two feet, and pierced side. Because the Risen Christ continued to bear and manifest his wounds after the Resurrection, the “wounds” are included on the candle. This shows the intrinsic connection between the Cross and Empty Tomb.

Fourth, the candle bears the Greek letters Alpha (a regular “A”) and Omega (an inverted “U”). These letters are the first and last letters of the Greek alphabet. They have long been associated with Jesus, the One who is both the beginning and the end of all things. Between the two Greek letters you will see a cross surrounded by the numbers 2014. By juxtaposing the current year with the Alpha and Omega, we are reminded that the present, past, and future are all bound together in the Risen Christ.

Though the Paschal Candle has special prominence during the Easter Season, it remains in the church throughout the year. At the celebration of every Baptism we light it to remind us that the Risen Christ stands with us as the beginning of life; and at every funeral it stands at the head of the body to remind us that the Risen Christ accompanies us through death to Eternal Life.
