REST IN PEACE

FOURTH OF JULY HOLIDAY SCHEDULE

Offices Closed

Mass at 9:00 AM

St. Patrick Parish offices will be closed on Friday, July 4th in observance of Independence Day. Mass will be held at 9:00 AM. There will be NO 12:05PM Mass on that day.

Summer liturgy changes

During July and August Mass attendance declines to about 700. Also, many people who serve as extraordinary ministers of Holy Communion and altar servers go on vacation, making it very difficult to fill out our schedule, especially for the 7:00 AM Mass. In keeping with these trends, all Masses, except the 9:30 AM Mass, will have a single minister of Holy Communion to assist the priest. Please remember that we honor the freedom of every communicant to receive on the tongue or in the hand, standing or kneeling, from the priest or minister of Holy Communion. Thank you for adjusting to this change.

The Roman Connection

On the Solemnity of Sts. Peter and Paul, the Church directs our attention to the "Roman connection" of our faith. Why does it matter?

We find a compelling answer from an unlikely theologian: Adolph Hitler. His masterpiece, Mein Kampf, contains his reflections about the "Roman problem." At the heart of Hitler's anti-Catholicism was the Church's universalism, which he firmly believed would pollute the "blood purity" of ethnic groups, especially the so-called Aryan race.

Hitler wrote very favorably of Georg Schonerer's pan-German movement in Austria called "Away from Rome." Having been baptized as a Catholic and raised by Catholic parents, Hitler no problem with Catholic ritual, whose beauty and mystical elements he truly admired. But he simply couldn't accept the "Roman connection," because it elevated spiritual concerns over anyone's ethno-political agenda. "The root of the whole evil," he wrote, "lay in the fact that the directing body of the Catholic Church was not in Germany, and that for this very reason alone it was hostile to the interests of our nationality" (emphasis added).

For example, Hitler strenuously objected to the Catholic practice of assigning clergy without regard to the priest's ethnicity. This happened in Austria where Czech priests occasionally served as pastors of German-speaking Catholics. This practice, he warned, was part of a conspiracy to make Austria a Slavic rather than German nation. He complained that German-speaking priests were disloyal weaklings, unwilling to defend German culture against the inferior Slavs. Viewing everything in ethnic terms as he did, Hitler hoped for an ethnic war within the Catholic Church.

Hitler would have tolerated a self-contained ethnic "Catholicism" in which people of different nationalities would never mix. Such an arrangement, however, is the complete opposite of genuine Catholicism, which is universal by its very nature. After all, in the Creed we profess belief in "one, holy, catholic, and apostolic church." There is no distinct "Catholic blood line" in our veins, only the Blood of Christ which runs through the veins of all sorts of people whom we call brothers and sisters. Hitler absolutely abhorred this notion.

As a shrewd observer of people, Hitler knew that a fair number of Catholics agreed with him rather than with the bothersome "Roman Church." And he also knew many would leave the Church as soon as they sensed that the universal Church would never endorse any political ideology nor allow herself to become amalgamated with any ethnic group. Moreover, he noted "only those who were lukewarm to begin with departed, and this from 'considerations' of a political nature." This happened, Hitler noted, because "the Church lost only those who had long ceased to belong to it." How true!

Since assuming the papal office in Mach, 2013, Pope Francis has repeatedly emphasized the universality of the Catholic Church, transcending -- and criticizing -- all political ideologies and national agendas. This should trouble no one, except the lukewarm. Indeed, by irritating many who hold power, even Catholics, the Holy Father continues in the grand tradition of St. Peter and St. Paul, two "aliens" who died long ago as martyrs in Rome, now the capital of the Church that has no boundaries.
